THE GAMM THEATRE STAGES “ALTERNATIVE TO SUPER BOWL SUNDAY”

PAWTUCKET, RI (January 27, 2004) — The Sandra Feinstein-Gamm Theatre (The Gamm) offers football widows and others left out in the cold on Super Bowl Sunday an evening of thought-provoking theater. Your $12 ticket to the last preview performance of Aunt Dan and Lemon, Wallace Shawn’s controversial and award-winning play, comes with a complimentary beverage to be enjoyed in The Gamm’s beautiful new lobby.

Play Synopsis

Isolated in her London flat and withering on a diet of bread and homemade juices, a young woman named Lenora (Lemon) tells us why she rather admires the Nazis. Then in a series of flashbacks to her childhood — most significantly a summer spent with Oxford scholar and family friend Aunt Dan, a pugnacious supporter of Henry Kissinger’s Vietnam policies — she reveals the seeds of her shocking and uncompassionate views.
